

Nobody knows me.

Nobody sees me.

I am lonely.

I want to go home.

© YouthLight, Inc.

Discussion Questions

Where did you used to live?

Tell me about your home there?

Tips From a Friend

Dear New Kid,

Believe me, I do know what it's like. It's hard. That's all I have to say now. Hard. It's hard to make new friends, it's hard to get used to your new house it's hard everything. But there are ways to get past it. First, is making friends. Don't try to be popular on purpose or anything like that, because you never know what could happen.

Myself, I like to tell a joke, or maybe talk to people about what I like. Then get to know them. These people could be anyone: a person at school, a neighbor, or maybe it could be someone in your family you never new. Next, if your having trouble adjusting to your new home, or maybe miss your old house, try deckenating your room. Put things from your house in it. This way you don't miss your old house much, but you can remember the good times you had.

Follow these tips, and you should be set to go!

From a helping Kid,
Charlie Ames, 11

This isn't fair.
Nobody cares.

© YouthLight, Inc.

What can I do?
Who can I talk to?

Discussion Questions

Do you have someone you trust that you can talk to?

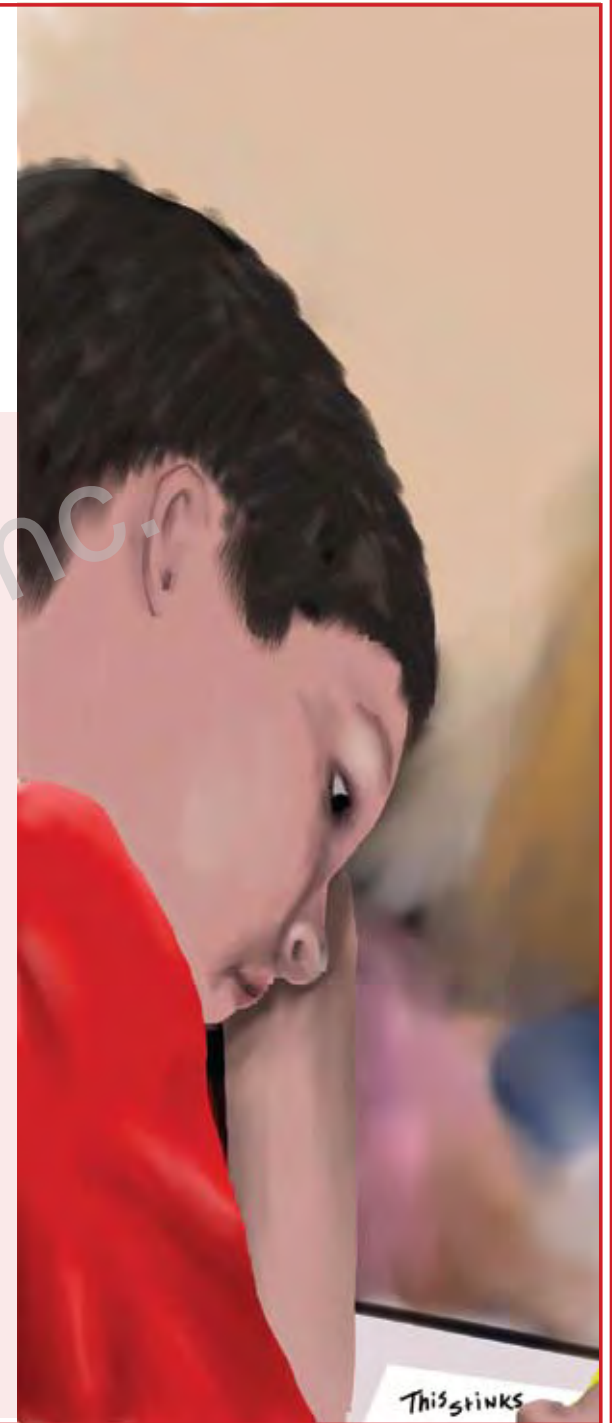

Who here at school can help you?

Tips from a Friend

Dear New Kid,

When I was in Kindergarten I was sooo scared I wasn't going to make any friends. But what I learned that is you be your self and don't be someone your not you will make new friends and if they don't like the really you then they are not a true friend.

From Cheyenne,
Age 10

The nicer you are and the more you share.

The faster others will know you care.

Discussion Questions

What qualities do you offer as a friend?

How do you want your friends to feel when they are around you?

Tips from a friend

Dear New Kid,

If you want to make some freinds just be yourself and people will like you for who you are that's what I did.

from, Sean, 10 years old

